

Workshop: Think differently in Research

Organizer: Prof. Dr. Paulo Pereira, Environmental Management Centre, Faculty of Politics and Management, Mykolas Romeris University

Day: September, 26, 2014.

Time: 21:00 – 22:00

Room: I-414

Source: <http://static.inspiration.entrepreneur.com/we/file/000/010/785/image-10785.jpg>

The academic world challenges us every day. Nowadays the velocity of the innovations and the high standards required, push us to challenge our limits and go beyond our comfort zone. This is the price to not “perish” in research. The roads where we walk depend on us, on our daily choices that in long term will take us to what we call “destiny”. In research is not different, the roads of excellence and high standards bring us to the top level. Sooner or later they will pay off. The question is, are we able to pay the price to reach to such level? How much we want to be top level researchers. Quoting Beverly Sills “There are no shortcuts to any place worth going”. So the only way to reach a sustainable success is to be able to not take the easy way, and for this think differently is fundamental.

This workshop aims to bring together students, researchers to share ideas and pathways to develop research in the future, and how thinking differently can help to achieve our visions.