

Throughout those five months, I created many fond memories that I will always cherish and that will bring me joy.

This was my first time living in another country for longer than a few days, as well as staying by myself. If I were to sum up my thoughts in one sentence, it would be that studying a language in a foreign country is peculiar on a completely different degree. Along with learning the Korean language, I also had the chance to get a first-hand look at Latvian culture, meet new people, and travel to places I had never visited before.

Overall, the studies were excellent and fascinating; we learned new things and expanded on previously explored themes. Lecturers were kind and competent, and Latvian students were helpful to us to help us fit in at the institution. Throughout those five months, I created many fond memories that I will always cherish and that will bring me joy.
