

Quality of education is the highlight of the school since you would be taught by well-informed teachers.

I attended a semester at EFAP on exchange as part of my degree, bachelor's in communication and Digital Marketing. Quality of education is the highlight of the school since you would be taught by well-informed teachers. There was no language barrier since everyone spoke English in school and even around the city (kind of). The entire city is very welcoming towards students and foreign delegates. A lot of companies have their head-offices in Paris which makes it quite viable from career prospects as well. Living conditions are a bit high when it comes to the cost, but the quality of life is really high.

