

Living in a new country is a challenge, but so crucial to your self-growth.

My days were filled with new amazing friends and never-ending adventures. I decided to come to Turkey earlier, to explore and get to know the country better. Beautiful beaches, mountain views, and welcoming culture were a great surprise to me. The locals were so friendly and hospitable, I felt a great connection with the place. Living in a new country is a challenge, but so crucial to your self-growth. At the end of everything you feel at ease because after all the challenges faced nothing seems the same anymore.

I am so grateful for the opportunities youth has because of the European Union and I just highly recommend stepping out of your comfort zone and joining any type of Erasmus project or exchange!
