

Embark on a journey into the Port of the Future, with our first International Summer School in Le Havre

The Campus Polytechnique des Territoires Maritimes et Portuaires invites students from around the world to explore the future of ports: how they can evolve, meet contemporary needs, preserve their heritage, and integrate principles of sustainable development and technological innovation.

From 30 June to 4 July 2025, our Summer School will be held in Le Havre, France, across the campuses of Sciences Po and the Université Le Havre Normandie. Fully taught in English, our programme will combine lectures, workshops led by professionals, port visits, and cultural activities.

For this first edition, the Summer School "LH: Port of the Future" is completely free: both tuition and accommodation fees will be covered by the Campus Polytechnique des Territoires Maritimes et Portuaires.

Interested students should confirm their participation by sending an email to summerschool@univ-lehavre.fr before 30 April 2025.

We look forward to welcoming your students to Le Havre and will be happy to answer any questions!
