

Online Event in English:

Understanding and Demonstrating the Societal Impact of Research – From academic excellence to societal value

“This online training session is aimed at researchers, research managers and professional staff supporting research and research assessment. It will explore the changing research assessment landscape and the growing importance of societal impact alongside scientific excellence. Participants will learn about different types of societal impact, pathways from research to impact, and practical approaches to identifying and evidencing the changes and benefits that research can generate beyond academia” presented by dr. Katarzyna Świerk, Institute for Higher Education Development, Poland